Endowed Scholarship Fund

Chad Klawetter

Denver Seminary is building a transformational global community in partnership with the church to equip leaders for the 21st century to think biblically, live faithfully and lead wisely for a lifetime.

In December of 2001, West Side Kings, an association established by devoted pastor Donald Brueschwylar, generously provided the funds for an endowed scholarship that would allow students who have a passion for urban ministry to attend Denver Seminary. Through West Side Kings, this pastor spent countless hours mentoring and sponsoring teenagers from the inner-city to pursue higher education, establishing programs to engage the youth, and working alongside the poor and homeless. He also emphasized the importance of returning to these communities in order to create a multi-ethnic church body that represented the family of God.

To remember his vision, the Inner-City Endowed Scholarship Fund was formed enabling students to be equipped in transforming urban communities by being an example of Christ. In order to be considered for this scholarship, each recipient must be a minimum part-time student, must meet academic requirements and must show a need for financial aid. In addition, each student must be planning on working in an inner-city ministry upon graduation.

Today, Denver Seminary has approximately 900 students, many of whom will make an eternal difference in urban communities. To enable more students to attend, gifts to endowed scholarship funds like this one are vital for equipping urban church and parachurch leaders. If you would like to give to the Inner-City Endowed Scholarship Fund or learn more about endowment giving opportunities through current gifts or through your estate, please contact Brian Fort at 303-762-6924 or brian.fort@denverseminary.edu.

Chad Klawetter, a recent graduate of Denver Seminary, works as the program coordinator for Hope Communities in inner-city Denver. Chad decided to pour his heart and soul into helping the impoverished, empowering them to choose a better life through affordable housing, economic opportunity, personal empowerment and spiritual wholeness. He adds:

“I see God at work in them and I want to be part of that.” While the work that he does is unending, he notes that “the biblical mandate to come alongside the poor doesn’t really leave you an option if you consider yourself a follower of Christ.”
